From Monday to Wednesday the Forum will be held at the Kursaal Centre. Ikusmira Berriak is a programme designed to support audiovisual projects seeking innovation and experimentation in terms of both cinematic language and production means. The representatives of the selected projects have the chance to pitch their works to industry members during one-to-one meetings thanks to a provided agenda with professionals interested in participating in their projects.

Zinemaldia & Technology, a strategic pledge by the International Film Festival, aims to position itself as a benchmark for reflecting on technology applied to the audiovisual industry. The event includes the presentation of the selected projects of the Zinemaldia Startup Challenge and a master class on audiovisual innovation.

The San Sebastian Film Festival is promoting the second edition of its work in progress, WIP Latam and WIP Europe. WIP Latam is aimed at Latin American productions and WIP Europe at European productions, both in post-production stage. A selection of a maximum of six films from each WIP is presented to an audience of professionals so that they can contribute to their completion and international circulation.

The films can be seen in person at the Príncipe Cinema (previous ticket reservation), and once screened, will be accessible online through the Festival’s Film Library (Cinando VL) until Saturday 25 September.

Promoted by IBAIA (Association of Independent Production Companies of the Basque Country) in collaboration with The Industry Department, this Forum has the core purpose of offering a meeting point for audiovisual professionals interested in documentaries at development stage, while fostering European co-productions and liaisons with professionals from the international film industry. Throughout the day, the production companies present their projects to a distinguished panel of commissioning editors and different professionals from the sector, followed by an agenda of individualised meetings.
The San Sebastian Festival wants to stress its character as a place of meeting, knowledge generation and transfer through the Thought and Discussion area. In dialogue with the different Festival departments, this cross-cutting area focusses on identifying subjects, formats and relevant people to lead the debate and develop innovative answers around the major challenges and concerns facing contemporary cinematic culture and the international festival circuit.

Every year, the Industry Department hosts numerous events inviting reflection, thought and discussion. Among them is the European Film Forum, a platform created by the European Commission to establish a dialogue with the audiovisual industry. The session will be accessible both in person and as a webinar.
